FHC Wednesday Webinars

Zoom talk on Wednesday 19th June 2024

Time: 7.30pm.

Ethics, Privacy and Copyright

When we start our family history as newbie genealogists, we are unlikely to anticipate the potential hazards of our research: emotional, ethical, or legal. Over time we become exposed to some of these issues but we may be unsure of our footing and exactly what our position should be in terms of ethics or legal matters like copyright or privacy. This talk will provide examples of some of the ethical (and possibly emotional) challenges as well as setting out our legal obligations with copyright and privacy.

Presented by Pauleen Cass

Pauleen Cass has been researching her family history since 1986 and remains obsessed with the joys of discovering new information and sharing it with family. In 2003 she published her Kunkel family history, Grassroots Queenslanders: the Kunkel family which was the winner of the 2004 Alexander Henderson Award (AIGS) and joint winner of the 2004 QFHS Queensland Family History Book Award.

FROM THE PRESIDENT

he annual FHC lunch was held at the Box Hill Golf Club on Sunday 26th May. As there were no presentations for the Alexander Henderson and Don Grant awards this year (due to the low number of entrants) there were about 40 attendees. However, this meant that we were able to use the smaller room at the club which had lovely views across the golf course and created a more intimate, friendlier atmosphere.

Alice Garner & Gail White

There are many ethical dilemmas around discoveries made in family history, particularly so since DNA has become ever more popular. Pauleen Cass will explore all these issues, so if they are of interest or concern to you, please join the Zoom session on Wednesday 13th June.

THEIR FINEST HOUR ONLINE ARCHIVE

y name is Dr Matthew Kidd and I am Project Manager for Their Finest Hour, a Second World War digital archive project based at the University of Oxford and funded by the National Lottery Heritage Fund.

We would like to invite you to the launch of the Their Finest Hour Online Archive, a unique collection of never-beforeseen stories and artefacts from the Second World War.

Since 2022, we have worked with hundreds of volunteers across the UK to record and digitize over 25,000 newly uncovered stories and artefacts from the war. These memories had previously been inaccessible to the public, and the objects were hidden away in people's lofts, cupboards and garages.

All the materials and stories associated with them have now been digitally recorded and preserved and will be available to view for free at theirfinesthour.org on Thursday 6 June 2024.

At our online launch event on 6 June 2024 (1pm-2pm British time, 3am Melborne time), you will be guided through some of the highlights of the archive and discover the most unexpected, unique and significant memories and keepsakes passed on by the wartime generation.

To attend this free online event, please register at: https://theirfinesthour.english.ox.ac.uk/launch.

MY FAMILY TREE BOOKLET

ucked away in the Members' Area website under the Resources tab, then under Other Resources is this handy little booklet for those of you who may have grandchildren interested in their family history.

MY FAMILY TREE BOOKLET

Select the pdf icon to open/view/print.

This is a great little booklet aimed at children, to help them document information about their own family.

We would like to thank the Family History Federation for allowing us to provide this booklet.

You can check them out at:

https://www.familyhistoryfederation.com.

A great activity for Mums and Dads along with their children. You can even involve the Grandparents.

RESEARCH AND LOOK UP SERVICE

here are four services available:

- 1. Research (minimum of two hours);
- 2. Look Ups (see form via Website for details);
- 3. One on One Assistance in the Resource Centre (maximum two hours) and
- Data Entry (Applicants must provide Editor's rights to Researcher)

Full details and rates are available on the FHC Website or on the forms in the Resource Centre

Special Offer for Regional, Interstate & International Members.

As many members are unable to visit FHC Resource Centre to access the records, a special research offer is available.

Each financial regional member is entitled to two hours of free research each calendar year.

Any other research above this would be chargeable.

Please note your request must be submitted prior to 31st October each year.

(A Regional Member is defined as one who lives more than 100km from the Resource Centre).

FINDING YOUR AUSTRALIAN FAMILY

FAMILY HISTORY COURSE – Finding Your Australian Family – Beyond the Basics

Do you need a refresher course on researching Australian records? Perhaps you are just starting out or would like to dig deeper into some new avenues of inquiry.

Following successful courses in 2021 and 2022, we are pleased to offer this course again in 2024 with up to 20 places available.

Participants will receive course notes via email, with a fortnight to work through the resources. Fortnightly Zoom sessions will be held on Tuesday nights at 7.30pm and will last around an hour. These sessions are not compulsory however they are a great way to connect with other participants to share successes and seek advice to jump over hurdles!

You will be guided through online and FHC Resource Centre sources to trace your own family back to the first arrivals on Australia's shores over the last 200 years. Along the way you should discover some fascinating (and surprising) details about your ancestors!

Course Information:

- The course consists of five parts, each one to be released on a fortnightly basis.
- There are five Zoom sessions with an Introductory Zoom session on Tuesday 4 June at 7.30pm then four more sessions every fortnight until 30 July

- The Course Co-ordinator is Darralyn Cusack with assistance from the experienced researcher Wendy Eldridge.
- The cost of the course is $50 for members and $100 for non-members.

To make a booking, access the Course details on our Members' Area under FHC Courses and follow the instructions for payment and registration.

Need more information? Contact Darralyn at membership@familyhistoryconnections.org.au

Here are some comments from previous participants:

- Guidance notes were very helpful as they gave a variety of sources for information.
- Really enjoyed the insights/tips provided by the other members of the course.
- The structured approach to following through on all aspects of an ancestor from birth/baptism, marriage, life – living and working- to death/burial was worthwhile.
- Thanks for an excellent and very informative course, I would highly recommend this course.

Findmypast Announces New Additions

New British India records

We've added 2,051 birth, baptism, marriage, death and burial records from British India, all from the year 1872.

British India Office Births

This Findmypast Friday, we added new records to this existing set. These transcriptions cover the year 1872.

British India Office Marriages

We also added marriage records to our British India collection.

British India Office Death and Burials

There are also new deaths and burials for you to explore.

If you've got ancestors from India, you may just find a familiar name or two within this updated set.

Updated BMDs from New Zealand

We've also updated our New Zealand birth, marriage and death indexes this week, with almost 26,000 additions from 1924, 1944 and 1974.

Ireland, Limerick City & County Electoral Registers 1760-1776

There's also a brand new Irish record set to explore. These 2,548 new electoral register transcriptions cover the years 1760 to 1766.

Where Were They in 1851? – Mapping Your Ancestors' in the Census

May 10th 2024, 16:16

The following is an announcement written by TheGenealogist:

For the first time, you can now pin down your ancestors in 1851!

TheGenealogist's latest release makes it easy to locate an ancestor geographically in the 1851 census. With a choice of historical and modern georeferenced maps, this welcome development makes it simple to explore the place where your ancestors lived and discover their surroundings.

Census records have always been a staple resource for family historians. With the particulars of the street or road name, researchers will often turn to a modern map to see if they can locate where their forebears lived.

This, however, can be fraught with difficulties if the road name changed over the years or the area was redeveloped. Thus, TheGenealogist has been working through its census collection, linking the records to the detailed map collections on its Map ExplorerTM.

The 1851 Census of Edinburgh linked to Map Explorer™ locating

Howard Place, the family home of novelist Robert Louis Stevenson

 The 1851 census now joins the ranks of other key censuses (1861, 1871, 1881, 1891, 1901, 1911, and the 1939 Register) already integrated with the innovative Map Explorer™.

- With just a click of a button, researchers can pin their forebears' residences down to a parish, street or building and trace the routes they would have taken to visit local shops, pubs, churches, workplaces, and parks.
- Historical maps reveal the location of major roads and the nearest railway stations, shedding light on how our ancestors would have travelled to other parts of the country to work, visit relatives or their hometowns.

With this latest release, subscribers of TheGenealogist can now explore their ancestors' neighbourhood in 1851, making it easier to uncover hidden stories and discover connections to family that lived nearby.

For those family historians on the move, TheGenealogist allows you to trace your forebears' footprints while walking down modern streets using their "Locate me" feature. Imagine retracing your ancestors' steps and discovering the places that they had frequented!

When viewing a household record from the 1851 census on TheGenealogist, you'll now see a map indicating where your ancestor was during the night of the census. Clicking on this map seamlessly loads the location in Map ExplorerTM, enabling you to explore the area.

TheGenealogist is available free for Members on computers in the F.H.C. Resource Centre.

Announcement by MyHeritage about records of births, deaths and marriages for New York City

MyHeritage is the only genealogy company that hosts the index for these records with scanned images. After a yearlong process of creating this brand new index, we are glad to share the collections with you.

New York City has played a pivotal role in the story of the United States as a nation and in the personal stories of countless American families. If you have any American roots at all, chances are, at least one person in your family tree was born, got married, or died in New York City, and may be found within these collections.

The collections contain a total of 37.4 million records and include a complete index created by MyHeritage alongside beautifully scanned color images of the original certificates and licenses.

In addition to indexing millions of primary individuals in the records, we invested a lot of time and effort in making millions of secondary individuals indexed and searchable as well.

For example, in marriage records, while the bride and groom are the primary individuals listed in the record, the parents of the bride and groom are secondary individuals that you wouldn't typically find indexed for these types of records.

But on MyHeritage, we made a special effort to index these individuals as well. That said, there are additional individuals — for example, witnesses of a marriage or the person reporting a death — who are mentioned in many of the records but not indexed, so it's always wise to look at the scanned image.

NEW YORK, NEW YORK CITY BIRTHS, 1866-1909

This collection contains 7,560,069 birth records from New York City, New York, United States, between the years 1866 and 1909. Records typically include the name of the child, date and place of birth, the names of the parents, and information about their birth.

NEW YORK, NEW YORK CITY MARRIAGES, 1866–1949

This collection contains 20,912,650 marriage records from New York City, New York, United States, between the years 1866 and 1949.

Records typically include the names of the groom and the bride, their birth place, their ages, the date and place of marriage and the names of their parents.

There are two different types of marriage records within this collection: marriage certificates issued by the New York City Health Department and marriage licenses issued by the New York City Clerk.

The NYC department of health issued marriage certifications through 1937, and beginning in 1908, in compliance with New York State law, couples planning to marry obtained a license through the city clerk. The city clerk license typically included an affidavit filled out by the couple, the license issued by the clerk, and the certificate completed by the person performing the ceremony.

We consolidated the multiple marriage records for the same individuals and we put them together as a set, so if there are both a marriage certificate and a license (which would be found for the years 1908–1937) then you will see both as part of the same record. If there is only one or the other, you will see just the one.

The information recorded in these two different types of records is mostly the same. However, the city clerk marriage licenses include additional information about the couples' parents and occupations, which can be extremely helpful.

NEW YORK, NEW YORK CITY DEATHS, 1866-1948

This collection contains 8,893,688 death records from New York City, New York, United States, between the years 1866 and 1948. Records typically include the name of the deceased, date and place of birth, age at the time of death, date and place of death, the names of the parents and the name of the spouse.

nteresting article by Chris Paton in his (highly recommended) blog Scottish GENES, 3 May.

ABERDEENSHIRE MEMORIAL INSCRIPTIONS RECORDS REMOVED FROM ANCESTRY

Well, it's happened again. At the end of March I announced that Ancestry had been forced to remove a database of Isle of Man civil registration indexes which it had crawled from another user's website and added to their platform without any given consent, a move which was labelled as "apparent data theft" by the data creator (see http:// scottishgenes.blogspot.com/2024/03/ancestry-pulls-isle-of-man-civil.html) appropriated from content created by the Aberdeen and North-East Scotland Family History Society, again without any given consent.

It seems that Ancestry is adding these collections to its site as part of an initiative called Ancestry Web Records. On its guide at https://support.ancestry.com/s/article/Finding-Records-Online-with-Ancestry-Web-Records it notes the following:

Libraries, governments, genealogical societies, universities, and genealogists have made a wealth of information available online. Ancestry® web records makes it easy to find records from many of these places. We summarize information from free web records and provide links to the original sites.

Guiding principles of web records

Access to web records is free. No one needs to subscribe or register with Ancestry to view these records.

Web records are attributed to the content publishers.

They're easily available. Prominent links make it easy to access the source website.

The site also adds the following for content creators:

We follow web standards for restricting crawling (robots.txt files). If a website has a robots.txt file that prohibits crawling the genealogical records, we don't search those records. If records from your website are included and you'd like them removed, please send a request to websearch@ancestry.com.

In essence, Ancestry is sweeping the web for data that it can add to its site. It's not charging for such data, and it is linking back to the original content creators, but one has to ask whether this is being done for charitable reasons, or for other purposes.

There can be many positive reasons for hosting such material - and indeed, in the past, Ancestry has created third party indexes to records available on other platforms, with their agreement, which you can often see with Web: written as a prefix to the collection title.

But to just arbitrarily take content that others have created without seeking permission first does seem to me to be something that may potentially break trust with many people and organisations, and potentially earn itself a few Darwin Awards along the way.

Records from the Isle of Man and Aberdeenshire collected on such a basis have already been removed over the last month as soon as the collection creators have learned about their appropriation. What else has been appropriated in the same way? Maybe Ancestry should think again about such a practice?
